PART 4: SKILLS ANALYSIS

4A: Skills Importance by Company Type

Methodology: Composite analysis based on job descriptions from 50+ companies, recruiter interviews on LinkedIn, OwnYourCareer.in placement guide (May 2026), and Productbased.in fresher SDE guide (June 2026).

Big Tech (Google, Meta, Amazon, Microsoft, Apple, Nvidia, Atlassian, Adobe, Salesforce, Uber)

Skill	Importance	Reasoning
DSA (Data Structures & Algorithms)	45%	The primary filter. Every OA is DSA-heavy. Google, Meta, Amazon use LeetCode-style problems exclusively.
Projects (GitHub + Deployed)	20%	Resume shortlisting signal. 2+ strong projects matter more than CGPA for Big Tech off-campus.
Core CS (OS, DBMS, Networking, OOP)	12%	Tested in interviews, especially system design. OS and DBMS come up most.
System Design (Basics)	8%	Relevant at senior intern level; some companies ask at intern level (Amazon, Atlassian).
CP Rating (Codeforces/LeetCode)	7%	Secondary signal. Useful for resume. High rating skips OA at some companies.
Open Source (GSoC, GitHub)	5%	Strong signal for Google, Atlassian, Postman. Nice-to-have for others.
Resume Quality	2%	Important for shortlisting but not skill per se.
Networking/Referrals	1%	Gets resume read; doesn't replace technical skill.
Aptitude	< 1%	Not relevant for Big Tech. Eliminated at resume stage.

Mid-Size Product Companies (Razorpay, CRED, Swiggy, Zomato, Meesho, PhonePe, Groww, BrowserStack)

Skill	Importance	Reasoning
DSA	35%	Still primary filter but bar is slightly lower than FAANG (LC Medium mastery is sufficient).
Backend Projects	25%	API design, database integration, caching — these companies care deeply about real backend work.

PART 7: FINAL PRIORITIES — IF YOU HAVE 10 MONTHS

"What should a 2028 batch B.Tech CSE student focus on to maximize chances of a product-company internship?"

Priority Ranking (Highest → Lowest ROI)

■ 1. DSA (Data Structures & Algorithms) — ROI: 95/100

Why: Every single product company uses DSA as the primary filter. Without passing the OA, nothing else matters. Google, Amazon, Microsoft, Flipkart, PhonePe, Swiggy — all start with a DSA test.

10-month target: 400–450 LeetCode problems. Maintain a weekly contest habit.

Time to Mastery: 4–6 months of consistent practice.

What "done" looks like: You can solve any LC Medium in 20–25 minutes. You have seen enough patterns to recognize which approach a problem needs within 2–3 minutes of reading.

■ 2. Backend Projects — ROI: 85/100

Why: Projects are your resume evidence. An OA tests if you can code; projects test if you can build. Mid-size product companies (Razorpay, CRED, Swiggy) often shortlist purely on resume before an OA. A well-described, deployed backend project in Java + Spring Boot directly addresses their stack. It also builds genuine skill.

10-month target: 3 backend projects, each deployed, with a GitHub README and at least one measurable metric (e.g., "handles 200 RPS at p95 < 80ms").

Time investment: ~15–20 hours per project.

■ 3. Core CS (DBMS, OS, LLD, OOP) — ROI: 70/100

Why: Interview round 2+ almost always includes core CS. DBMS SQL queries, OS deadlock scenarios, and LLD (design patterns, class diagrams) appear across every mid-size company interview. Neglecting this means losing offers even after clearing DSA rounds.

10-month target: Complete DBMS (4 weeks), OS fundamentals (3 weeks), and LLD design patterns (6 weeks). Practice designing 10 real systems in LLD format.

4. Resume Building — ROI: 65/100

Why: Resume is the gatekeeper for off-campus applications. A weak resume = immediate rejection before an OA. A strong, ATS-optimized resume with quantified project metrics = shortlisting even from Tier-2 colleges for top companies. This has high ROI relative to time invested (2–3 days of work, but permanent benefit).

10-month target: Single-column, ATS-clean resume. No photos, no skill bars. 2–3 projects with action verb + stack + metric format. Done by Aug 2026.

5. Networking & Referrals — ROI: 60/100

Why: Product companies have small HR teams. A referred resume bypasses automated rejection filters at companies like CRED, Postman, BrowserStack, and even Amazon/Google. At startups, a warm intro from a founder's contact = interview. ROI is high but requires consistent LinkedIn effort and genuine relationship-building.

10-month target: Connect with 50+ professionals at target companies. Get 5–8 referrals to trigger applications. Join 2–3 alumni channels where internship openings are shared first.

6. System Design (HLD basics) — ROI: 45/100

Why: Not tested at the intern level for most companies. However, understanding HLD for simple systems (URL shortener, WhatsApp, Instagram) makes your projects better-documented and your LLD practice more contextual. Begin this in month 5 (Nov 2026) — don't start earlier as it has low immediate ROI at the intern level.

10-month target: Study 5–8 classic system designs. Read ByteByteGo newsletter or one chapter/week of Alex Xu's system design book.

7. Competitive Programming (CP) — ROI: 40/100

Why: CP rating is a secondary signal and can skip you past OA at some companies (Codeforces Expert = Amazon OA waiver at some campuses). But the time investment for a high CP rating is enormous. Better to spend that time on LeetCode DSA which directly maps to OA success. CP is a multiplier for those who already have it; building it from scratch in 10 months for internship purposes is suboptimal.

10-month target: Participate in at least 20 LeetCode contests and 10 Codeforces rounds. If you naturally reach Codeforces Specialist (1400+), great. Don't chase it at the cost of LeetCode practice.

8. Open Source Contributions — ROI: 30/100

Why: Open source is a strong long-term signal (valued highly at Google, Atlassian, Postman, Hasura) but takes significant time to build meaningful contributions. For a 10-month internship timeline, 1–2 meaningful contributions are ideal. GSoC 2027 (March deadline) is the structured route — if you get selected, it replaces the need for a traditional internship entirely.

10-month target: 2–3 meaningful PRs merged to reputable open-source Java/Spring repos, OR a GSoC proposal submission.

9. Aptitude — ROI: 5/100

Why: Aptitude tests (Quantitative, Logical, Verbal) are relevant only for service-based companies (TCS, Infosys, Wipro) and investment banks. For product companies (which is your target), aptitude is not part of the selection process. Goldman Sachs and JPMorgan have numerical/verbal sections but these are passed with basic preparation (2–3 days).

10-month target: 2 days of practice on IndiaBix for banking aptitude if targeting Goldman Sachs/JPMorgan. Zero additional effort for pure product companies.

Final 3-Line Advice

- 1. In months 1–2: Build your resume, start DSA, apply to Amazon and Microsoft the day their portals open.
- 2. In months 3–4: Complete DSA foundations, build a strong backend project, apply aggressively in September (especially Google).
- 3. In months 5–10: Transition to interview prep mode, practice mock interviews, keep applying to Indian product companies on a rolling basis, and submit a GSoC proposal in March 2027.
